Allen Event Center Hosts Successful Three-Night Concert with TobyMac

Allen, TX - Allen Event Center welcomed 6,091 concertgoers over three nights for TobyMac's Hits Deep Tour 2021. The limited capacity concert event was the first for the arena since the start of the pandemic. Tickets were sold in PODS of 2, 3, 4 and 5 seats, and strict safety measures were in place, including mandatory masks. The arena also reduced touchpoints between guests and staff with all-mobile ticketing and contactless, cashless payments at the box office, merchandise and concession stands.

"This was a huge step in the right direction for our facility," said Bill Herman, General Manager of Allen Event Center. "It's also another sign that things are slowly, but surely, getting back to normal in the event industry."

Allen Event Center will host another limited capacity concert on April 29 when Christian artist Kari Jobe brings The Blessing USA Tour to North Texas.

Governor Celebrates Launch of State Community Vaccination Site at the Ranch Events Complex in Larimer County

Loveland, CO - Today, as part of Governor Polis' Vaccines for All efforts, the Governor visited the State Community Vaccination Site at the Ranch Events Complex in Larimer County. This site is being run in partnership with the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

"It's exciting to watch the opening of another community vaccination site in Colorado. The state is proud to partner with FEMA at the Ranch Events Complex to get more shots into arms and work to end the pandemic in Colorado," said Governor Jared Polis. "Sites like this one will play an integral role in distributing this lifesaving vaccine to all Coloradans who want one. Each dose administered means we are all a day closer towards returning back to our Colorado way of life."

"Colorado has done great work on the state's vaccination effort and FEMA is pleased to support Larimer County with its efforts at The Ranch," said Acting FEMA Regional Administrator Nancy Dragani. "Adding this new level of federal support to our state and local partners helps ensure vaccine access to more Coloradans, which is critical."

"We're grateful we can continue to support our community in a time of need," said Director of The Ranch, Chris Ashby. "Our hope is that The Ranch Events Complex vaccine site will play an impactful role in helping combat COVID-19 in Northern Colorado."

On Friday March 19, the State moved to Phase 1B.4, allowing people 50 and older, as well as additional frontline workers, and those with at least one high-risk condition to get their first dose of the COVID-19 vaccine.

Colorado also launched another Community Vaccination Site at the State Fairgrounds in Pueblo and Dick's Sporting Goods Park in Commerce City on March 22. The State similarly launched two other Community Vaccination Sites in Colorado Springs at the Broadmoor World Arena and in Mesa County at the Grand Junction Convention Center on March 17. There will be an additional site coming online in Denver County at the Ball Arena in the coming weeks.

With more Coloradans receiving their vaccine, the state has also requested feedback on Dial 3.0, which aims to offer greater flexibility. By mid-April, CDPHE intends to move to a more local model, allowing local public health agencies to assume more control over capacity restrictions that are currently determined by the dial. COVID-19 still presents risks to healthy Coloradans, so everyone should continue to take precautions until they can access the vaccine.

Appointments for eligible individuals can be made at www.larimer.org/health or by phone at 970-498-5500.

Jarod Matheney Entertains

Jarod Matheney, Director of Operations, First National Bank Arena, sang the national anthem at the Memphis Grizzlies game, which was broadcast live on Fox Sports. This was Matheney's third time to perform at an NBA game.

Curtis Culwell Center sees Volta Charging Stations

Two Volta electric car charging stations are being installed in the East lot of the Curtis Culwell Center at no cost to the CCC. Volta offers free charging stations to drivers while also doubling as an advertising platform for sustainable technology. They will be leasing two parking spaces for a multi-year deal and are paying a monthly rate for use of the spots.

A Horizontal Safety System is being installed in the CCC arena because there is currently not a catwalk. It is a cable system that riggers can hook onto to allow them to work more efficiently and safely while installing lights and sound for road shows.

In the months of May and June, the CCC will have twenty full capacity graduation ceremonies with multiple school districts.

The games were aired across the ESPN networks, which District general Manager, Keller Taylor, commented on saying, "putting Northern Colorado on national television is always a great thing." Artosphere: A Fun Way to Get People Back to Live Performances

Artosphere, Arkansas' Arts+Nature Festival, returns May 6-23 with a mix of free and ticketed performances spread across Northwest Arkansas in venues and outdoor spaces which will give fans a safe way to experience live theater and music performances.

Artosphere favorites Trail Mix, Off the Grid and the Artosphere Film Series return as part of the festival with free performances. Trail Mix will feature performances along the Razorback Greenway Trail System. Off the Grid will put performers outside of local bars and in public spaces in Fayetteville's downtown area.

The Artosphere Festival Orchestra and the popular Chapel Music Series will not be part of this year's festival due to health and safety restrictions to prevent the spread of COVID-19. Yet Dover Quartet, a staple of Artosphere, will return. Dover Quartet performs at Walton Arts Center at 7 pm on May 18 and will also be broadcast live on KUAF 91.3. Artosphere also features one of the first public screenings of the quartet's new documentary, Strings Attached, at 7 pm on May 19. In addition to Dover Quartet, other ticketed Artosphere performances include Jayme Stone on May 20 and Art Heist, a new interactive theater piece.

A true crime outdoor theater piece that gives you the chance to crack the most famous unsolved mystery, Art Heist is based on the world's single largest property theft. The heist took place 30 years ago when 13 art pieces, valued at half a billion dollars, were taken from the Isabella Gardner Museum in Boston.

During this 90-minute theater experience, you will meet a cast of characters involved in the theft. As you interact with security guards, museum staff, investigators and suspects you'll gather clues and try to figure out what really happened—but watch out for red herrings. There's still a real-world reward, so you could solve the case and collect the cash. Art Heist will be performed in Fayetteville May 6-9, in Rogers May 13-16 and in Bentonville May 20-23.

You can see a complete Artosphere Festival schedule and purchase or reserve tickets now by visiting artospherefestival.org.

What's next for venues?

While most large public gatherings have been cancelled or postponed during the past year, our colleagues in the performing arts and events industries have been busy doing valuable community work, investing in new technologies, and adapting working practices to create a safe and healthy environment for everyone. Some of these adjustments were a direct result of the rapidly changing world around us, but other advances were already beginning to happen before the pandemic and were simply accelerated by the need to stay active within our communities during this time.

Three of our Denver-based experts—Gena Buhler, Chris Moore, and Aaron Wong—have published short articles about how these changing habits and behavior might affect the way we think about gathering spaces. They also consider how these trends present opportunities for making our venues more welcoming, resilient, and inclusive in the long term.

What's the role of placemaking in our venues? Gena examines the lessons learned from the past year and the different ways operators can benefit from opening up venues to more community programming and events.

Can technology play a role in making our spaces more inclusive? Chris writes about the trends we're seeing in our recent project work and how using smart technology can offer new, yet familiar ways to connect people and create a more immersive experience.

How will changing public attitudes affect venue design? Aaron looks at how the pandemic has created a demand for more healthy, supportive, and sustainable spaces—and what that might mean when we're designing intimate performance environments in the future.

At Theatre Projects, we continue to stay in contact with our IAVM colleagues and hope you're all keeping busy and safe. If you ever want to touch base, just to say "hi" or to connect with us about your work, feel free to reach out to us any time!

AMP Happy Hours Returning this Spring, Touring Broadway Shows Returning this Fall

Walmart AMP announced the return of its popular Happy Hours on Choctaw Plaza this spring with food, drinks and free live music by local and regional artists on Fridays and Saturdays starting in May. Venue Design: Guidelines for Infection Control

Due to COVID-19, venues have seen cancellations across the board and are considering what reopening will look like. When the doors reopen and events resume, ensuring the venue feels safe for fans and patrons will be critical. To do this, we need to design spaces that allow better social distancing amongst large crowds and find strategies to control any potential spread of infection. Visit the Henderson Engineers website to read the venue design guidelines for infection control.
